GOVERNOR GRANTS PARDON TO TWO

Says Hand of Providence Seems to Be Against Prisoners.

HISTORICAL WORK PRAISED

Great Quantities of Christmas Liquor Arriving in Raleigh.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
RALEIGH, N. C., December 22.—Declaring that the hand of Providence seems to be against the two prisoners, in that the health of both has failed terribly since they became involved in the trouble, Governor Kitchen grants pardons for two prisoners serving terms for manslaughter. They are J. Will Glininger and Charles W. Costner, sentenced in Gaston county to two years and one year respectively, the killing having taken place in the midst of a baseball game, with bats as the weapons. Glininger has been serving sentence since February, and Costner since August.

It was a picnic ball game. The Governor says Costner seems to have been seeking to stop the fight. The trial judge who sentenced the two men is dead. The solicitor at first opposed pardons, but has since investigated the matter, and writes the Governor that he favors pardons, and suggesting that the hand of Providence seems to be on them. Both are incapacitated for work. Costner has had three operations for stomach trouble. Physicians declare that further imprisonment would endanger the lives of both men. A condition of the pardon granted is that the two men must appear at each criminal term of the Superior Court in Gaston county for two years, and show that they have been of good conduct.

Governor Kitchen commissions Judge George H. Brown as a member of the North Carolina delegation to the National Congress for Uniform Legislation at Washington, January 17 to 19. Dr. James Ford Rhodes, one of the great American historians of the world, writes R. D. W. Connor, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission, expressing appreciation for the work of the Historical Commission. Writing from Boston, under date of December 15, Mr. Rhodes says: "I thank you very much for the two admirably printed volumes of the 'Correspondence of Jonathan Worth.' Had I not completed my history of the Civil War and the Reconstruction I should read every word of the letters during those periods. As it is I have read here and there enough to see what valuable historical material your commission has furnished in convenient form, and which no one after me can afford to neglect. The editing of Dr. Hamilton seems to me of the best and in strict accordance with modern canons. If I ever revise my history I shall examine and have examined these volumes thoroughly."

It is of interest to note in this connection that Dr. Rhodes is the one historian who has written of the Civil War and Reconstruction as a historian, and not as a partisan, and he is to-day recognized throughout the world as the highest authority on the history of the United States from 1850 to 1875. The North Carolina Association of Architects met in semi-annual session here to-day, and will also be in session through Thursday forenoon. The officers of the association are Joseph Leigener, Wilmington, president, and Franklin Gordon, Charlotte, secretary-treasurer. Informal discussions of technical and professional matters took up the time of the association to-day. There will be a number of papers read on various topics bearing on architecture. There are about twenty architects in attendance.

E. P. Wood, of Virginia, has been appointed assistant state veterinarian by the State Board of Agriculture, to succeed Dr. Hartman, resigned. He will take up his duties January 1.

FOR XMAS

About Christmas time it's cold—as a rule, stormy, too. Later on the snow melts, then slush and sloppy weather.

Do you think a good stout pair of Storm Boots would be appreciated as a Christmas Gift?

We'd like to see the woman who wouldn't appreciate them.

WELL IMMIGRANTS ONLY CAN LAND

Medical Examinations Will Be Made on Ship's Arrival.

NEW YORK, December 22.—Commissioner of Immigration William Williams has issued notice to the steamship companies, saying that since they had notified his office that they would not hereafter be responsible for the hospital or maintenance charges of immigrants who on arriving are found to be afflicted with apparently temporary sickness, the government must decline to incur any expense in connection with the care of sick immigrants before they are landed. He also wrote that the government insisted that the steamship companies were responsible for all charges, but could not be put in the position of being compelled to sue for them.

The notice tells the companies that the government will begin as soon as possible to make preliminary medical examinations of immigrants aboard ships, "in order that those who are physically or mentally unfit to land under the immigration law may be detained on the vessels which brought them, and not become charges on the public funds."

The companies are warned that they must be prepared to have sent back to their vessels such other cases of sickness as may be discovered after the landing of the immigrant at Ellis Island; also, that if it is necessary to place immigrants in hospitals on shore for treatment, the companies will be held "responsible for all expenses in accordance with the practice of the last twenty years."

Commissioner Williams said this about the notice: "The great majority of immigrants suffering from some temporary ailment, and who must be removed before they can be landed, if subjected at once to the operation of the law, would be excludable, but the government always has been willing to give sick immigrants the opportunity of recovering their health. The steamship companies have assumed the attitude that hospital bills in such cases should be paid by the government. To this extraordinary proposition, the government cannot accede. It greatly regrets that necessity now forced upon it of subjecting immigrants to a medical examination aboard ship. The new practice is likely to result in increased deportations."

eral hours later than the usual time. The line will be responsible for those ordered to the hospital by the doctors.

None of the representatives of the lines was willing yesterday to talk about the probable attitude of the lines. It was said that whatever they might do would be in concert. The impression of some of the steamship men is that the government may be compelled under the law to maintain detained sick immigrants at the Ellis Island Hospital.
